"For the things we have to learn before we can do them, we learn by doing them." Aristotle.

19.1. Watch the video "The history of portraits."

- a) Search the web and write a short history of portrait painting.
- b) What things should we pay attention to in order to interpret one of these works? Provide guidelines for an art critic carrying out the analysis of a portrait.
- c) Self-portraiture is nothing new, but do you have a psychological explanation for the selfie phenomenon in social media? How does it affect real-world relationships?
- d) Briefly analyze Diego Velázquez's Las Meninas. Why is this painting so famous?
- 19.2. Discuss the function of the nude in the history of Western art. In contemporary depictions of nudity, where is the line between art and pornography?
- 19.3. Watch the video "Should I be using Google or the library resources for a paper?"
 - a) What services do public libraries provide? And what are the main functions of a national library?
 - b) Explain what the Universal Decimal Classification is and how it works. List the nine main tables. Take a few examples of books from your library and analyse their UDC code.
 - c) What is Google Scholar? Comment on its main advantages and limitations.

19.4. By the end of this week your glossary should already have 245-350 new terms.
