1. Check with the web the equivalent language levels according to The Common European Framework of Reference for Languages: Learning, Teaching, Assessment. (Spanish version: Marco común europeo de referencia para las lenguas: aprendizaje, enseñanza, evaluación.) In compliance with that information, what is your current level in English? Justify your answer.
2. What is Europass? (<http://europass.cedefop.europa.eu/>) Do you think it could be of any use to you in the near future?
3. Bookmark/Add to your favourites, at least, two other free on-line English language level tests.
4. What is the Dialang project? How can it help you test your foreign languages level? Is it of any use to you?
5. Bookmark/Add to your favourites, at least, three monolingual on-line technical dictionaries/vocabularies and, at least, two bilingual on-line dictionaries. Selected sites should be related to your degree.
6. Bookmark/Add to your favourites, at least, two good-quality free on-line monolingual (English-English) technical publications related to your degree: magazines, journals...
7. Bookmark/Add to your favourites, at least, two good-quality free on-line writing tutorials (English-English).
8. Bookmark/Add to your favourites, at least, two good-quality free on-line English grammars/English courses. Sites may be either monolingual (English-English) or bilingual (English-Spanish).
9. Bookmark/Add to your favourites, at least, two English speaking TV and / or Radio stations (such as the BBC, or the CNN) and, at least, two video-streaming sites, such as YouTube or Metacafe.
10. For future reference, look for the appropriate sites to check the name and pronunciation of punctuation marks.
11. Can you read mathematical formulae and symbols? Look for suitable links to help you with this task.
